THE TERROIR

Chablis Premier Cru appellation has 40 different named vineyard plots; this is because each possesses a unique identity according to its soil and orientation. Yet they all share one particularly vital aspect in this northern vineyard - they are all south facing. This patchwork of "Climates", with its multitude of facets allows some especially stylish blends, but all of them deliver that incredible minerality.

DID YOU KNOW?

The first traces of vineyards in Chablis date back to Roman times, then from the 12th century, the Cistercian monks developed vine cultivation. Officially recognized in January 1938, the Chablis Appellation d'Origine Contrôlée recognized the excellence of this dry white wine which, throughout its history, has shown it can maintain its top ranking thanks to a quality grapevine planting policy.
